DETENTION HOSPITAL ORDERED MOVED FROM PRESENT LOCATION

CITY COUNCIL INSTRUCTS CITY ATTORNEY TO COMPLETE CONTRACT FOR MOVEMENT OF BUILDING.

PARKING QUESTION UP

Alderman Dulin Advocates Moving Of Interurban Ticket Office. Parking Nuisance Must Stop.

Residents in the southern part of the third ward are up in arms over the moving of the Detention Hospital about six rods from its present location. A petition was presented to the council last evening claiming that the moving of the building would endanger the health of the residents living in the immediate vicinity. It was also made known at the meeting that if the council did not take action to stop the movement, that the city would have a lawsuit on its hands before another twenty-four hours passed. Despite this protest the order to move it was passed.

At the meeting two weeks ago the city attorney was instructed to draw a contract for the sale of the ground on which the house now stands to the Federal Land and Gravel Co.

No More Trucks. After the reading of the minutes Alderman Thomas Welsh read a petition from thirty six first ward residents asking the council to stop the railroad from moving the Detention Hospital. The petition was accepted and placed on file.

Alderman Cronin of the third ward then presented a petition regarding the Detention Hospital to the council. He made a motion that the petition be accepted. City Attorney Roger Cunningham in short address to the council told of the rights of the city in moving the hospital and stated also that he knew that the property owners were preparing a lawsuit should the hospital be moved.

Alderman Dulin then addresses the council and stated that if the city was within their legal rights that he wanted the house moved. Alderman Welsh asked the council to stop the moving of the house. A vote was taken and the city attorney was instructed to complete his contract with the Federal Land and Gravel Co. for the moving of the Detention Hospital.

Alderman Cronin introduced a resolution requesting that the city engineer be instructed to draw plans for the building curb and gutters on McKee Blvd. and in front of the Spring Brook Fire Station and in front of the Jackson school. The resolution was accepted. Alderman Cronin introduced another resolution asking that the Janesville Electric Co. be instructed to erect a street light at the corner of Ruggles and Randall streets. The resolution was adopted all voting in the affirmative.

Report Filed. Alderman Dulin asked that the report of the plumbing inspector be accepted and placed on file. Alderman Welsh asked the council to bill the monthly allowed and the city clerk ordered to pay them. The motion was passed. Alderman Cronin moved that the report of the council be published once the motion was carried. Alderman Welsh presented the monthly report of the Health Officer and requested that it be accepted and placed on file. The motion was carried. Alderman Cronin moved that the report of the Municipal Court for the month of June be placed on file and accepted.

Alderman Horn introduced a resolution instructing the street commissioner to inform the Lewis Cigar Co. that they must clean up the refuse left by them after unloading a car. The resolution was adopted.

Alderman Welsh introduced a communication from the Janesville Machine Co. asking permission to install an underground tank on Franklin street between Olive and Franklin streets. The request was granted.

Alderman Welsh introduced an order for the purchase of a grader blade. The order was allowed. Alderman Welsh introduced an order for the purchase of a grader blade. The order was allowed.

Alderman Welsh presented the bonds of Sam Dorf and Simon Cohen, dealers in junk and asked that they be accepted.

Alderman Kertus presented an order for the placing of an iron gutter on Walker street. The order was allowed.

Wants Pay Raised. Alderman Horn sprung the sensation of the meeting when he presented a resolution asking for a raise of $200 a year for the chief of the fire department. Alderman Welsh immediately took the floor and opposed the measure. Alderman Dulin also spoke against the measure and termed Chief Klein as the highest paid official in the city of Janesville.

Alderman Horn then told of the salary being paid fire chiefs in other cities and on finishing called for a vote. Alderman Welsh addressed the council and told of the outside work done by the fire chiefs.

A vote was taken and the measure was lost, all voting no with the exception of Alderman Pautz. Alderman Hanson asked that a committee be appointed to look into the condition of the police patrol. Mayor Valmiste requested that the police committee investigate the matter and report at the next meeting.

City Hustlers. Mayor Valentine read the appointment of O. E. Wilson as a special policeman for the month of July. The council confirmed the appointment.

Alderman Dulin then addressed the council in regard to the condition which exists at the Myers House corner in regard to the unloading of baggage from the interurban, and also the manner in which the sample trunks are left standing on the street. He advocated the moving of the ticket office to a place further north on Main street. Mayor Valentine then addressed the council and stated that he would instruct the chief of police to caution the manager of the hotel against the practice.

Auto Parking. Alderman Dulin registered a kick about the manner in which autos are allowed to be parked on Main street. He spoke very emphatically on the matter and stated that he desired that the matter be done.

The matter at hand. Alderman Welsh introduced a resolution requesting that the street commissioner be instructed to hire painters to paint large white signs on the street telling where the cars are not allowed to be parked. The resolution was adopted.

Alderman Horn then introduced a resolution asking that the Janesville Traction Co. be told to improve their tracks on North Washington street. The resolution was adopted.

On motion of Alderman Dulin the council adjourned.

On sale at St. Joseph's Convent, Identification cards and pocket folders for soldiers and sailors. Also numerous religious articles.

SOLDIER TELLS OF FIGHT WITH GERMANS

Private Edward Joholski Wounded in Battle on May 26th—Describes Fight in Letter Written From France.

Private Edward Joholski, a former member of Company M, 10th Wisconsin Infantry, writes a very interesting letter from France telling of the battle of that day. Private Joholski was struck in the head with a machine gun bullet and miraculously escaped death. His letter follows:

My Dear Mother: I received four letters from you the day before I went into the trenches and I was awfully glad to hear from you. I am glad to hear that you are all well and getting along fine. I got a letter from Joe and he told me he is in the hospital, but he didn't tell me what was the matter with him, but he was getting along fine. Well, mother dear, I am in the hospital lying with a bullet wound in the head. It is on the 28th of May. We went over the top. Gee, mother, we sure had some battles and we lost it, but we had an awful hard fight and a lot of the boys got killed and wounded, but there was more wounded than killed. I got hit at 8:30 in the morning and was taken back to our line in the hospital, and from there they took us to the base hospital. You will read about the battle in the papers and see how good the boys fought. Well, mother, they look like machine gun bullets out of my head and am feeling good and will be out of the hospital in a short time. Gee, mother, I was lucky. That was twice I came near getting killed. The first time I was in the trenches there was a big shell that fell close to me, but it did not hurt me. Well, mother, do not worry about me as I will be well in a short time. Tell father I got lots of one again. Well, mother, so I will close for this time. Good bye, good luck. God bless you and keep you all in good health.

TELEGRAM TELLS OF FLEEING REFUGEES

John Rexford Receives Telegram From La Fayette Memorial Fund Asking Assistance in the Present Crisis.

John G. Rexford, president of the First National bank, has received a telegram from the executive committee of the La Fayette Memorial fund telling him of the plight of the refugees fleeing from France.

The telegram requests that contributions be sent as soon as possible, and Mr. Rexford with the rest of the board will accept contributions for the fund. The telegram which tells the story follows:

Cables from Paris state that from every point on the sixty-mile battle front between Reims and Rheims, streams of refugees are pouring into the central France fleeing Hun zone. Reports state it is the most pitiful spectacle in history. Our Paris committee, Ridgely Carter, treasurer, has resolved itself into an emergency fund to help in the emergency.

Our directors feel this work vital and in the name of happy Americans, they are here in safety beg you once again to help quickly in this desperate crisis by sending the largest check possible to James A. Blair, Jr., treasurer, from La Fayette Memorial fund, Inc., 2 West Forty-ninth street, New York.

FARM LABOR AGENCY NO. 150.

A SIMON-PURE PATRIOT

There are different ways of showing one's patriotism. One of the easiest is the wearing of a uniform, for the Kiaki or navy blue makes the man who wears it in this country's service.

But the country needs more than fighting men. It needs men for the industrial army, and it especially needs men for unskilled work. Today the man who volunteers for the pick-and-shovel work in an emergency is as much a patriot as the man who volunteers for the Army.

The production of troops this year must be the least ever known in order to keep our country going. This is impossible without sufficient laborers. If the farmer must have help at once and there are no grain men, the government will send out laborers if the farmer will send for the necessary blanks. These may be obtained at the Janesville Daily Gazette, Farm Labor Agency No. 150.

WANTED: Farm work. Age 14, large size and experienced. $2.00 day or will arrange by the month. G. H. RICHARDS, 208 W. 25th, Bell phone.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Our War Savings Stamp sale is on, and our salesmen are hearing the hard luck stories when the slackers are asked to buy.

The same people who try these yellow tricks have kept out of the army, and then will not lend their money, and then if they do, buy just enough to pass them. Farmers owning 32 to 40 acres of land and buy the miserable sum of twenty dollars worth of stamps.

But they can own two autos and if another farmer would keep some of his money in a bank, they could get enough money to buy that, but no money to help to crush the Hun.

Another said when asked to buy stamps to keep the Hun out of our land, let them come, they won't hurt anything.

It seems to me yellow paint is a mild treatment for such people. Another said, who did not happen to be a German, keep out of the army just as few stamps as you can get past with, they both go together. Am thinking of some the Yellow Jack, who by these cowardly tricks have managed to exempt on an agricultural basis, one especially who is supposed to be more peered on the farm who loses a man, and he spends his time on the road, he could not be spared; by some other young man who just because his father could not buy a farm and make him manager. He must be spared and he may buy $10 worth of stamps.

I think it is time something else is done besides yellow paint being used. And still such yellow dogs pose for loyal Americans, and some of the yellow fathers tell what they would do if they were 20 or 25 years younger. Yes, they would don skirts yet would save their yellow hides. I think there is one thing we as loyal citizens should refuse to do.

They should have no place socially at all. That is one step that should be taken. Maybe some people will think this untrue. Well, mother, do not worry about me as I will be well in a short time. Tell father I got lots of one again. Well, mother, so I will close for this time. Good bye, good luck. God bless you and keep you all in good health.

MONDAY'S MARKETS.

Chicago, Ill., July 2.—Baby beef is getting very popular with buyers. A load of choice steers weighing 1,140 pounds, sold on yesterday's market at $13.85, the first time this season that little cattle have reached their summit. Buyers are inclined to turn the cold shoulder toward the light weights that are now coming to market freely.

Prime stuff of any weight is greedily sought, but buyers are very finicky about quality. They prefer the light weights that are strictly choice because during the summer season there is a wider call for the small cuts of prime beef.

Hog receipts were larger than anticipated, but moderate supplies at other markets stimulated buyers to unusual activity after a bulky and heavy market.

Conditions in the sheep market were better than expected. A supply of 17,000 was not sufficient for the demand and prices were mostly 25¢ higher than the best range Idaho lambs up to $19.

Good Cattle Steady. All the good cattle offered sold on a steady basis with the close of last week, while the common and medium were generally 10 to 15¢ lower. The supply, figured at 19,000, was more than expected and carried a heavy price. The heavy stuff that was discriminated. A few loads of range cattle from Montana arrived, forced in by the dry weather.

Quotations: Fancy steers, $17.00 to $18.00. Good to choice steers, $16.00 to $17.00. Common to med. steers, $14.00 to $15.00. Yearlings, $13.75 to $14.75. Pigs to fancy calves, $10.50 to $11.50. Canning cows and cutters, $7.50 to $8.00. Native bulls and stags, $7.75 to $12.50. Stockers and feeders, $9.00 to $13.00. Pigs to fancy calves, $10.00 to $17.00. After a slow start the hog market got up a good head of steam and finished strong with prices a fraction higher than Saturday and 10¢ to 15¢ higher than the early morning sales. The supply was figured at 45,000.

Quotations: Light butchers, $16.80 to $17.15. Light butchers, $16.80 to $17.15. Good heavy, $16.70 to $16.95. Mixed packing, $16.20 to $16.65. Rough to heavy packing, $15.75 to $16.25. Poor to heavy packing, $15.00 to $16.75. Good lambs 25¢ higher. Receipts of sheep and lambs were 17,000. Demand was very good. Packers had about half the stock they needed, but needed the rest and bought the range lambs very eagerly at 25¢ advance over last week's values.

Quotations: Good to choice Spring lambs, $18.00 to $18.75. Common to medium Spring lambs, $14.50 to $16.00. Western lambs, $17.00 to $18.00. Good hattie, $16.00 to $17.00. Common to medium, $15.00 to $16.00. Yearlings, $10.00 to $16.85. Feeding lambs, $15.50 to $16.75.

JANESVILLE MARKETS.

Prices quoted below are for large quantities as sold to farmers. When purchased in small lots, the price is higher somewhat than that quoted because of the expense of handling and delivery.

Barley $5.00 per 100 lbs.; feed corn $3.35 per 100 lbs.; oats, 95¢ per bu.; rye, $2.00 per bu.; ear corn, $2.25 per bu.; wheat, $2.80 bu.; timothy hay, $27 per ton; mixed hay, $26 per ton; oat straw, $12 per ton; rye straw, $12; oil meal, $5.05 per 100 lbs.

Price Paid Farmers. New barley, $2.40 to $2.60 per 100 lbs.; new oats, 75¢ per bu.; ear corn, $2.35 per 100 lbs.; rye, $1.84 per bu.; hay $24 per ton; oat straw, $8.00 to $9.00. Potatoes, $1.00 to $1.25 per 100 lbs.; eating apples, 9¢ to 10¢ lb.; oranges, 60¢ per doz.; limes, 40¢ per doz.; grape fruit 10 to 12¢ each; mixed nuts, 25¢ per lb.; coconuts, 10 to 12¢; bananas, 30¢ to 35¢ per doz.; strawberries, 35¢, pineapples 30¢.

Part-Indian Lad From West is Hero Stands Off Hun Detail and Escapes

"I turned the machine gun on the Germans as they came at me."

Paris, July 1.—Private Frank LaPave, a youth from Council Bluffs, Ia., with Indian blood in his veins, one of the heroes mentioned in recent dispatches from the front for his bravery and daring in action, is reported to have been killed during the engagement, but was killed within a few minutes. The terrific firing finally forced Frank and his two comrades to fall back. Frank became Children Burned. A daughter of two months and a son four years, of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Stager, Union Grove, Wis., died on Monday when the Stager home was destroyed by fire. The parents were working on their farm just outside the village. They lost a daughter seven years old in charge of the house and the younger children. The girl started a fire to prepare dinner and it set fire to the house. A son 15 was badly burned in attempting to save the babies.

Receiver is Named for Local Concern in Bankruptcy Court

Jones Dyeing and Bleach Works in Financial Difficulties in United States Court.

In the action brought in the United States court for the Western District of Wisconsin before Referee in Bankruptcy Charles Lamb of Madison, the Jones Dyeing and Bleach Works of this city, incorporated for a hundred thousand dollars, has been placed in the hands of a receiver pending an investigation and adjustment of its financial difficulties.

It is understood that C. K. Patton was named as receiver and that claims which aggregate about one hundred thousand dollars have been filed already or will be within a day or two. It is also understood that the petition for the court action was taken by the National Aniline Chemical company of Milwaukee.

Mr. Patton was out of the city today and it could not be learned whether the plant would be closed or continue in operation. Arthur C. Jones was president and Dr. J. P. Thorne, secretary and treasurer.

MRS. BARBARA BLUNK CALLED TO REST

The soul of Mrs. Barbara Blunk was called to its eternal rest at 10:30 o'clock last night at the home, 335 North Jackson street, after an illness of nearly a year. Her death came as a distinct shock to her many friends in this city.

Mrs. Barbara Blunk was born here on April 6, 1857, and had been a resident of Janesville all her life. She was married in 1875 to Henry Blunk. Mrs. Blunk was a woman of rare personality. Her sunny and cheerful disposition and kind and generous heart gained her a host of friends and admirers. Always a devoted wife and loving mother, her home radiated happiness and hospitality, and she endeared herself to all who came in contact with her. Her loss is deeply mourned by her family and many friends who loved and revered her. She was patient and cheerful to the last, complaining at nothing, and spreading happiness among all who visited her. Surviving her are three daughters, Mrs. William McCue, the late Mrs. Mary and Catherine Blunk, and one son, Henry Blunk, all of this city. She also leaves five sisters to mourn her loss, Mrs. Catherine Zienow of Janesville, Mrs. Patrick Tracy and Mrs. James Bennett of the town of Rock, Mrs. Mary Dettloff of Niagara Falls, N. Y., and Mrs. Emma Piebich of Berlin, Wis. One brother also survives, Andrew Ellison of the town of Rock.

The funeral will be held from the home on Thursday afternoon at 2:30. Services will be conducted by the Rev. J. A. Melrose of the First Presbyterian church. Interment will be in Mt. Olivet.

ISSUES INVITATION TO GRANT CELEBRATION

[Special to the Gazette.]
Camp Grant, Ill., July 2.—The following personal invitation to friends and relatives of camp soldiers was given out today by General Martin: "To the home folks of the Eighty-sixth division and Camp Grant, I extend to you a cordial and urgent invitation to come to this camp on Sunday, July 7, and help your fighting men make the independence day celebration the greatest patriotic event of the national army training period. Our interest in your welcome, comfort and entertainment is second only to the patriotic motives which prompt the military demonstration. All of our resources and camp conveniences, which you have made possible by your ceaseless loyalty and devotion, will be yours for the day, and the camp will attempt to express its appreciation of your support."
Your entertainment is assured by the program which is already familiar to you.
To insure your comfort, arrangements have been made to establish comfort stations, restaurants, meeting places, and refreshments in all portions of the camp. The new Y. M. C. A. building will be open. The Y. M. C. A. and K. of C. buildings will be thrown open to you to supply comfortable places for visits with your boys who will be free to enjoy your company after noon of the Fourth. War service and camp service organizations are co-operating with camp and the blackhawk division to meet your personal needs. Box lunches sufficient to supply more than 100,000 people will be awaiting you in camp. Every point of interest on the reservation will be open to your inspection.

JANESVILLE SOLDIER WRITES FROM FRANCE

Sergeant Thomas Cronin of This City Writes Interesting Letter From France Telling of Observance of Memorial Day.
Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Cronin of Eastern avenue have received a letter from their son, Thomas, who is stationed "Somewhere in France." In his letter Sergeant Cronin tells in a very vivid manner the way the American and French forces observed Decoration day. The letter follows:
Base Hospital No. 8, Somewhere in France, June 3, 1918.

Mother dear: This is the third letter to you this week, but I've been saving one letter to be given over to the principal celebration of Memorial day, in this section of the country, took place. The town was alive with American and French flags, and our American country which overlooks a wide sweep of beautiful landscape had been decorated for the occasion. A platform had been built and was decorated with bunting and green and here were placed the guests of honor and officers in charge, some of whom were the American consul general, the mayor of the city, Major Cooper of the hospital, our chaplain, and also some French officers.
In front of this platform several companies of American troops were spread in military formation, including a detachment of army nurses and a large assembly of French people. The ceremonies were in charge of Major S. . . while our chaplain introduced the speaker. The consul general read President Wilson's proclamation in both English and French. A French general responded for the French army to our soldiers, who had given their lives to the common cause. After prayers and sacred melodies my company escorted the guests to the graves and they placed a magnificent wreath in which both French and American national colors were combined upon the central grave. The nurses decorated the other graves with flags and flowers, and the American and French regimental flags were marched forward and dipped over the final resting place of American soldiers who died for their country, the bugle sounding "Taps." At the end of the ceremony some of the troops then fired the usual salute across the graves. For the final close the "Marseillaise" and "The Star Spangled Banner" were played.
It was a wonderful day, mother, and it sure was a touching time, and I am sure you will never forget this day. Memorial day in France. I wish that the mothers of the men, whose graves we decorated could have been here, for they would be comforted by seeing the ceremony paid to those so dear to them.

From James Brown.
The following letter was received by Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Brown of 428 S. Ringold street, Janesville, Wis., from their son, James, who was fighting the Germans in France:
France, June 10, 1918.
Dear Mother and Father:
I write you a few lines to let you know that I am still alive and getting along fine. I am now in a hospital in Paris, was slightly wounded in the fighting last Thursday but it is nothing serious. Got hit in the foot with a machine gun bullet. I think our losses were pretty severe, but we certainly made the Germans pay dear for it. I suppose the papers in the state are full of accounts of the fight. The Germans had a pretty poor opinion of the Americans up to this time but I guess they have learned to respect them now.

SOLDIER-LINEMEN RISK THEIR LIVES TO LAY TELEPHONE WIRES AT FRONT

Huge shells, plowing up holes in the ground, often put communication wires between divisions of the allies' troops out of commission during a battle. These lines have to be repaired, sometimes while the battle still rages. The wire men take their lives in their hands when they go out to relay or splice the wires and bury them again. The above photo shows a squad of men repairing wires on the French front.

CHURCHES WILL CONSIDER SUBJECT OF FEDERATION

The Presbyterian and Congregational churches will consider a matter of federation in connection with the morning services next Sunday. The official representatives of these two churches have recently been conferring together and have found a basis upon which, as individual members of these churches, they deem such federation feasible.
The public worship and the mid-week meetings of the two churches may be federated without interference with the integrity of the organization of either church. Subsidary organizations of the parishes are not now involved in the proposition. It is proposed that the federated services be held in the Congregational church; that the Presbyterian pastor become the federated pastor; and that the affairs of the federation be handled by a committee equally representative of the two churches. This committee will have to do with such matters as the support of the pastor, church music, appointment of ushers, and other matters related to the federated activities.
Federation of the two Sunday schools has been seriously discussed, and a plan to this end may come later, when practical experience in federation has been acquired by the churches.

Edgerton News

Edgerton, July 2.—Nearly two hundred were present at the annual school meeting last evening at the high school building. D. C. Gile was re-elected as clerk of the board. Mrs. Mooney was also re-elected. August Rutledge was elected to succeed George Dallman. N. E. Nelson who had filled the unexpired term of C. H. Babcock was also re-elected. The report of the auditing committee was accepted and placed on file. It was also voted to instruct the board to hire a visiting nurse for the ensuing year. The sum of $22,600 was appropriated for the school expense for the coming year. Miss Selma Benson and Miss Froda Winter of Chicago are guests at the home of Mrs. N. A. Nelson.

INTO THE UNKNOWN

Once away from Philadelphia, Sally's heart swung nearer and nearer back to her home town. "Do you see, now," said Dr. Roll, "why physicians so often prescribe travel for a patient when nothing else succeeds?" "I certainly do," smiled Sally, "if a form of artificial respiration, if you just go through the motions long enough, you begin to work again. You can't be thinking of your small-town troubles in a place like this—you're too busy watching the crowds and dodging automobiles. Did you ever see such a continuous performance of excitement as the New York. The Philadelphia unit was quartered in a maze of barracks, tents and covered wooden walkways, many acres in extent on the northern fringe of the city. They were told that their stay might be but two or three days, or it might be two weeks, depending on when they could get transportation.

Sally and the other nurses had various duties in the morning—the physical drills in a big field near headquarters, the care of the wounded, the reports and what not. But in the afternoon they could get leave to "go down town," as they called it, although they were well within the limits of the vast metropolis.

At first New York frightened Sally. Every one seemed to be in a hurry and excitement. The clamor of the subway made her shudder. The four-by-five line of automobiles on Fifth avenue were an amazement. The sickening smell of hot gasoline fumes, the deafening, never-ending shrieks of horns, the never-thinning throngs on the pavements, all busy all trying to get somewhere, oppressed her. Yet she felt a queer, feverish, hungry, searing slight, "doing" the shops—such palaces of shops—riding on the trolley buses, through the glory of Riverside Drive, exploring "downtown" and the "rubberneck wagon" with a man howling a "lecture" through a megaphone.

At first she could not resist to being shoved and stepped on. She would stand aside and be polite, and for her pains she got pushed. Presently—and alas, it didn't take long—she began to run and to push like the rest, elbowing through who were her way, darting under horses' noses and the blunt shouts of motor cars.

Night on Broadway was a miracle beyond words. "And yet," she wrote to Florence, "this most famous street in the world is paved partly with boards, partly with stone and partly with nothing but dust and cinders.

"The roadway is all dug up so that you can look down miles into the bowels of the earth where men work at night by the light of electric torches. It reminded me of that mining camp in Nevada we visited once with dad."

Then, quite suddenly they got their sailing orders. There was an air of mystery over their embarkation, the weird part of it being that they sailed at night. Sally stood at the rail staring down the steep side of the ship, all painted with stripes and black and white and blue. She got a thrill from head to foot. Deep-throated whistles roared solemnly through the lesser sound of shouting men and puffing tug-boats. On board their ship, crowded with men in khaki and women in blue, the very atmosphere was charged with excitement held in check by the strictest discipline.

Sally's arm went around her shoulder. "Yes, I do, dear. It's the way soldiers feel. It's a feeling so big and so complex that we've got to grow a pair of senses to measure it with."

Heart and Home Problems

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a married lady and love my husband and you all. I don't at times he doesn't seem to care a thing for me. I have a lady friend whom I think the world of and she has a daughter sixteen years old who is with me now. She only married a few weeks ago, and now her husband has gone "over there." One night last week my husband and I were out at her house and asked her to go and ride with him. She told her mother that I was with them, but I was not. I knew nothing of it until I got home one day and she asked me how I enjoyed my ride. Of course, I didn't know what she was talking about. Then she said, "Why, didn't you go with your husband and my daughter?"

When I told her I didn't go, she told her daughter that I was along.

Then I went into the store where her daughter works and asked her if she went riding. She said she had and felt terribly when she learned that her mother knew I wasn't along.

When I got home I asked my husband whom he had been taking riding, and he said, "No one." I finally convinced him I knew of the ride and he confessed.

(1) Do you think she ought to have gone with him?

(2) Ought I to drop her and have nothing more to do with her?

(3) Ought I to tell her mother more about it?

(4) What can I do to make him love me?

(5) No, she ought not to have gone with him.

(6) Do not drop her because you will not gain anything by doing so. Talk the matter over in a friendly way and you may help her to be more true to both her husband and you in the future.

(7) Do not tell her mother unless it happens again.

(8) Most women do not dress as well as they might at times. Do better. They find they cannot afford to do so. If your husband can afford a machine he can also afford to buy you good clothes. Look so well as you can. Your husband and other men will remark about you favorably to your husband. Matter him, too. When he shows any signs of being unkind, be especially nice. Say, "If he gets enough appreciation at home he will not look elsewhere for it."

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of twenty-one. Three years ago I met a young man. We liked each other very much and went around together a great deal. She had been from town and we have corresponded ever since. Although he was in town so long he never said anything of interest to me. I think I understood his actions. He is a very nice, reliable steady-going man.

Ten months ago, I met a nice young soldier in town. Now I see him often. I like him much better than the other. He has told me that he loves me and asked me to marry him. I have met some of his people and they are very kind.

My parents approve of the first and wish me to marry him, but I do not love him.

The soldier is not as reliable as the other and is expecting to leave soon—in fact before this month is over. My parents do not approve if he marries me, but give me no reason. He will marry me before he leaves. I do love him.

Don't you think I am old enough to decide for myself?

ELLIE.

You are old enough to decide for yourself, but it is a most important matter you should not make a hasty decision. Perhaps your parents do not know why they do not like the soldier, but it is not a good husband for you. Instincts are pretty reliable and their dislike for him may be well grounded. If he loves you, the way he does for you until after the war, do not marry him until then.

But You Didn't Do The Worst Things. A friend of mine who built a house, but you have been wondering over since if she did the best thing in her choice of lot and plan. She had completely decided that another lot further down the hill would have been very much better because it was a more sheltered place and was flagging herself for not having taken it.

Someone tried to comfort her by pointing out the advantage of the lot she had, but in vain. She persistently closed her eyes to them. She Didn't Take The House In Which The Cellar Flooded.

And then a very strange woman took up and said, "Well, maybe you didn't do the worst, but don't you think it's a comfort to know you didn't do the worst. Don't you remember that house down the other way, and you knew you said the other day when we were by there and saw how the piazza sagged, that you couldn't be thankful enough that you didn't take it because you knew you didn't have to have something done to it all the time. Now, either of those would have been much worse than building this nice house, your business!" and he gets awful funny about it. He is a nervous being married to a hero. If I only knew what army he was commanding I could follow him when he goes away. I hope it is the Southern army. It is, and Jim won't tell you why don't you get Sherlock Bones, the great detective, to find out for you.

"That's a good idea. Jim's such a great man now it won't be hard to find out."

And you say his chest is covered with medals, and he refuses to tell you what forces he is commanding? asked the great detective.

EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

A gentleman will not lean over the back of another's chair, even tho' that person be his wife.

R. B. Letters frequently appearing on invitations, are not usually written upon visiting cards. Their meaning is "Answer, if you please, and wherever invitations bear these letters, a reply is required, with the least possible delay.

EDITH. Mark all linen to be given to the bride with her own initials, and send the gift to her postally as early as possible before the wedding, and even sooner if it is convenient.

That is all, madam, I shall have the solution to the mystery at quarter past nine tomorrow morning. Good-day."

III.

"Yes, madam, I have discovered the reason for the medal-wearing propensities of your husband."

"And he is a great general, Mr. Bones?" I knew it. I knew it.

"Ahem, madam. I see so. I shall have to tell you the whole story. You see I followed your husband in back of him really, stopping him from seeing a redoubt in front of him. However, I thought of a plan. I rushed away from him quickly, ran around the block and came face to face with him. We were both so startled that we crashed into each other, and—madam, when I looked at your husband where he had fallen, the medals had dropped to the ground and he was on the very spot where the medals had hung on his coat, were large mothholes! The medals were used to cover up the mothholes. And that isn't all, madam, they were not medals, but beer checks."

When Mrs. Jim fully recovered from her humiliation at still being the wife of a common, ordinary civilian, she stammered:

"What do you do—advise me to do? Mr. Bones? Shall I get a divorce?"

"No, madam. I would not. I would advise you to go home and darn up that moth hole as it makes its appearance. Fifteen dollars, please."

Household Hints

MENU HINTS

Breakfast.—If I see so. I shall have to tell you the whole story. You see I followed your husband in back of him really, stopping him from seeing a redoubt in front of him. However, I thought of a plan. I rushed away from him quickly, ran around the block and came face to face with him. We were both so startled that we crashed into each other, and—madam, when I looked at your husband where he had fallen, the medals had dropped to the ground and he was on the very spot where the medals had hung on his coat, were large mothholes! The medals were used to cover up the mothholes. And that isn't all, madam, they were not medals, but beer checks."

When Mrs. Jim fully recovered from her humiliation at still being the wife of a common, ordinary civilian, she stammered:

"What do you do—advise me to do? Mr. Bones? Shall I get a divorce?"

"No, madam. I would not. I would advise you to go home and darn up that moth hole as it makes its appearance. Fifteen dollars, please."

War Gingerbread (from above menu)—One cup brown sugar, one cup molasses, one-half cup vegetable shortening, two eggs, one teaspoon cinnamon, one teaspoon soda, one and one-half teaspoons salt, three teaspoons baking powder, three cups barley flour, one cup boiling water. Beat sugar, one cup molasses, one-half cup vegetable shortening. When cool add beaten eggs, then barley flour (sifted) with other dry ingredients and hot water. Beat well. Bake in flat tin for 15 minutes.

Rice and Cornmeal Muffins—One cup cooked rice, strained (use the water to mix with), one cup rice, one cup milk and water (you may use one cup sour milk into which put one-quarter teaspoon soda), three tablespoons melted lard or compound, one cup common one-half cup barley flour. Makes fourteen gems.

Pressed Chicken—One bowlful chicken chopped fine; one cup bread crumbs, one small onion, previously cooked and chopped fine, salt and pepper to taste. Moisten with hot chicken broth, press in a bowl. Serve cold.

One-Dish Dinner—Melt three tablespoons drippings, add two tablespoons cornstarch and brown. Then add two cups hot milk and stirring add 1 chicken. Add liberal amount of salt and pepper, add one-quarter pound cream cheese cut in small pieces, one can tomatoes, one medium onion chopped very fine, one small can of mushrooms.

Grease baking dish and fill three-quarters full of spaghetti, which has been previously boiled and tender in water with one tablespoon salt. Cover with first mixture. Bake in medium oven until brown. Serve with baked potatoes. Serves six persons.

Oxtail with Tomatoes—Take one large oxtail (or 2 persons), cut up at joints, wash in hot water and dry. Put on the stove to brown with a tablespoon lard. When nice and brown, add one small can tomatoes, salt and pepper to taste; let cook slowly until done.

Serve with this plain boiled rice or macaroni. A very inexpensive supper dish.

CANNING AND PRESERVING.

Old-Time Raspberry Jam—Only the berries are necessary for this recipe, as sugar is not added until prepared for the table.

After crushing slightly, put the berries over the fire and cook them until the seeds are thoroughly done. They can then be put into any kind of jars without sealing. Place paper or a piece of white paper or cloth down close over the berries; also a tight cover to keep out the dust.

In the olden days a good stout cloth was tied tightly over each jar, but the very best thing for berries prepared in this manner is a large-mouthed jug which can be tightly corked.

When the berries are taken out simply add hot water to thin them to the right consistency for the table, sweetening to taste. The water retains the bright red color.

Glazed Salmon—One cup American or cream cheese, two tablespoons vinegar, one-third cup oil, one-half teaspoonful salt, one-eighth teaspoon cayenne, two tablespoons chopped olives.

Blend all ingredients thoroughly. Shape as desired and chill. Serve with English dressing.

If American cheese is used grate or cut it fine.

HEALTH TALKS

Blushing is a temporary flush. When it involves the most common bluish area, the middle of the face and becomes permanent, we have run blushing.

Rosacea is the proper name for undue redness of nose and cheeks or nose alone. It is about five times more frequently observed in females than in males. The latter do not mind it much. From the constant hyperemia or congestion the superficial blood vessels sooner or later become permanently dilated; the sebaceous or oil glands of the region overgrow; inflammation of these sebaceous glands follows, the oily or cheesy matter is retained, and upon the redness a beautiful crop of insolent pimples grows. In a few cases the nose undergoes hypertrophy or thickening, and that is called by the euphonious title of rhinophyma, something like the rhinophymus of Barnum's side-show.

A rum blossom blooms the year round, but most luxuriantly in cold weather, and the more the owner or general manager of the bloom is exposed to cold weather the more likely is he to develop rhinophyma.

To cure a rosacea is much more difficult than to kill just how it looks. Necessary use of tea, constipation, shallow breathing, overeating, heavy eating, and lack of general exercise are causative factors in various cases. Wearing tight collars, tight corsets, or a ribbed lined or other previous cotton underclothing in the cold months instead of hygienic light-weight knitted underwear, contribute to the disease in some cases. When any such factors are concerned they must be removed or remedied. In some cases cure has been brought about by taking internally, once daily, one ordinary yeast cake, mixed to fluid consistency with cool water, for six or eight weeks.

A lotion for local application is the following:

Precipitate sulphur..... 1 dram
Powdered camphor..... 5 grains
Powdered tragacanth..... 10 grains
Lime water..... 1 ounce

Rose water, of each..... 1 ounce

This may be applied two or three times a day.

X-ray treatment gives good results in cases in which thickening of the nose has occurred.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

When it relates to Bathing

Kindly tell me whether it would be dangerous for a woman to go in bathing at the time of a period. Also whether that is ever known to cause inflammation or suppression. (Mrs. N.)

Answer—If a woman feels so inclined there is absolutely no danger in going in bathing at any time.

The Cause of St. Vitus' Dance.

What causes chorea? A person has mental trouble or is feeble minded can she secure treatment when unable to work and unable to pay until later on? (Mrs. N.)

Answer—Chorea (St. Vitus' dance) is caused by infection of nerve ganglia, usually in the infection being of the spinal cord. In dressed tonics, however, generally, in dressed tonics, and ultimately reaching the spinal cord, the like to know if it is able to pay, cord.

One should be able to obtain proper treatment in a hospital, through the assistance of her family doctor. Hospital wards are for patients who are unable to pay for medical services. She may arrange with the hospital authorities to pay later.

Put Man Puffs on High.

Please state whether a sign of disfigurement in high altitude is a sign of disfigurement. I am 34 years old, 66 inches high, and weigh 150 pounds, apparently. I can hold my breath only 45 seconds, and can swim not more than fifty feet under water. I live at an altitude of over 6,000 feet and am unable to climb over 100 feet. As I must soon return to the States, I am anxious to know if I can acquire myself to high altitudes and remain as active as I am here. I weigh thirty pounds, to about normal for a young person of your height, and when you will probably be a woman, when you will engage in high life.

Tales of the Friendly Forest

You remember in the last story that just as Billy Bunnay hopped into the hollow stump a voice said:

"What are you doing in here?"

"I came in to get out of the wet," answered the rabbit, and then the voice replied:

"What! Is it raining? I'll lend you an umbrella!" and an old woodchuck opened a little door in the side of the stump and winked at Billy Bunnay.

"That's very kind of you," said the little rabbit, and he opened his sack and gave the woodchuck a nice little piece of carrot. After that the woodchuck said: "I think you'd better stay here with me until the rain is over. Don't you think so?" for the woodchuck was very nice and had such good manners that the little rabbit felt quite at home.

But, oh, dear me! It began to rain so hard right then and there that the water just poured into the old hollow stump, and pretty soon it was very uncomfortable. So the woodchuck said:

"Don't you ever tell anybody where I'm going to take you. For it's my very own house, and I never let anybody know just where I do let anybody in. So many people are after me, some with guns and some with sharp teeth and claws, that I have to be very careful."

So the little rabbit promised, and then he followed the woodchuck through the little door and down a long passage until they came to a nice, large, comfortable room.

"Now, Billy Bunnay, where I live," said the woodchuck, and he went over to the cupboard and took out a case of candy gumdrops and gave the little rabbit one. Billy Bunnay ate it up and then he sat down in his old armchair and smoked. And all the time they could hear the rain pattering on the grass overhead, and how wonderful how you can hear all sorts of sounds when you're under ground and have big ears like a rabbit, you know.

"Now, I'll tell you a story," said the old woodchuck after he had blown some lovely round rings of smoke into the air.

"Once upon a time, Not so very long ago, A band of tiny Indians lived in the woodland near. And often I would hear them A-singing soft and low. When all was dark and quiet And the moon shone bright and clear.

So one evening I stole softly Out of the hollow stump, And found them dancing merrily With tiny skip and jump. And just as I was going To say how do you do, The Fairy Queen she flew. And then her tiny subjects Took fright and ran off, too. And now I never see them more. A-dancing near my old stump door."

"That's too bad," said the little rabbit, for he was so interested in what the old woodchuck was saying that he had forgotten all about his lollypop and had dropped it on the floor.

And in the next story he'll pick up his lollypop and eat it, because I hate to have him lost it, don't you?

TEACHERS GATHER AT PITTSBURGH FOR SESSION

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 2.—The teachers of the country, at least the 8,000 of them that are gathering here for convention, for July 2 to 5, are going to show their weight into this contest between Germany and America. They have been virtually called to the colors by the leaders of the National Education Association, managing this annual convention. For one week they are going to discuss war-modified education. These leading officials, and notably President Wilson, war-time leaders and educators, will tell them what the government wants them to do.

Leaders of the association say that Russia's collapse has made clear that the educational organization of the intelligence and co-operative effort of the people is essential to victory; that the army which is the spearhead in France, must have its long strong shaft at home. The Council of National Defense at Washington has decreed that the school houses must serve as the government's outposts and has called on every state organization to assist in the effort to organize the school center. President Wilson has seen the need for this and has written personally to every state, calling attention to this new movement as the most important movement since the war. Education has never been welded, and thirty-eight states already have responded.

In Oklahoma, they ask, to test a man's loyalty, "do you belong to the Community Council of Defense?" has decreed that the school district formed in every school district of the state. The loyal districts are those that have 100 per cent membership of adults in this service and the school house in districts are operating with each other to show every man, woman and child, lined up and ready for action.

This accounts for the animation with which teachers are looking forward to the convention at Pittsburgh, for their leadership in community organization is going to be their biggest and best contribution overwhelming the enemy.

To get people in all walks and ranks of life, as well as one hundred and one war organizations, to do team work together at the school house, takes study and discussion, hence, three community conferences have been planned under the auspices of the three principal agencies engaged in this educational work, the National Education Association, the National Education Association, and the United States Bureau of Education. Those conferences are to last four days, July 2 to 5.

The president of the National Education Association, Mr. Mary C. Bradford, who is State Superintendent of Public Instruction in Colorado, will give the key-note in an opening address Monday, July 1, entitled, "The Building of the New Civilization but the main conferences will begin the following day when the United States Secretary of the Interior, Franklin D. Lane, will inaugurate America's Experiment in Democracy."

What are its Failures and Successes?"

John Collier, president of the National Community Center Association, will give the point of view of the citizen, who wishes to become a member of the Community Council of Defense. The Council of National Defense at Washington will present the system of organization at the school house, and the Bureau of Education, through Commissioner Claxton will tell why the school district is the "Ultimate Unit in Democracy."

"THEY SHALL NOT CROSS," IS PLEDGE OF ITALIAN TROOPS ALONG THE PLAVE

Italian infantrymen resisting Austrians along Plave river.

Italians are fighting to the last man to prevent the Austrians from crossing the Plave river, now a barrier in the path of the Hun advance. In trenches along the banks of the river and screened by the natural undergrowth the Italian infantrymen are stopping with rifle as well as machine gun fire all attempts of the Austrians to make a crossing or float pontoon bridges.

ITCHING ECZEMA CAUSED AGONY

Burning So Intense Scratched. Face Disfigured. In Five Weeks Completely HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"I was troubled with eczema which started in a mild pimply form. It grew worse until my body, head and face were a mass of eruptions. The itching and burning was so intense that I irritated it by scratching, until my clothing aggravated the eruption. I suffered untold agony and my face was disfigured. A friend told me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and I began to use them. In five weeks I was completely healed." (Signed) F. M. Twinn, 316 S. Second St., Columbus, O.

The Light in the Clearing

A TALE OF THE NORTH COUNTRY IN THE TIME OF SHAS WRIGHT.

"I wandered in the grass all the forenoon trying to kill enough berries for this celebration," said Aunt Deel as she resumed her eating. "Can't be she's one of the Sam Fullertons, can it?"

"Oh, probably not," said Uncle Peabody. "But what's more, I stick at it. Say, I see the biggest bear this morning that I ever see in all the born days of my life."

"It was dark. I'd come out of the fifty-mile woods and down along the edge of the marsh and up into the bushes on the lower side of the pasture to catch a bear or something."

"Stopped and pecked through the bushes—couldn't see much—so dark. Then the old bear riz up on her hind legs—plus to me. We didn't like the looks of one another and begun to edge off very careful."

"Seems so I kind of said to the old bear: 'Excuse me.'"

"Seems she said: 'Bear kind of answered.'"

"I got down to a little run, near by, stepping as soft as a cat. I could just see a white star on the side of her head. I foot to step on the star and jump across. B-r-r-r-r! The star jumped up and scampered through the bushes. Then I was scared. 'Gosh! That's a bear!'"

"I was in everything. Seemed so all the bushes turned into bears. Jerri-larn, how I run! When I got to the barn I was pretty high up."

"How did it happen that the stone jumped?" I asked.

"Oh, I guess it was a rabbit," said Uncle Peabody.

A week later we had our raising. Uncle Peabody did not want a public raising, but Aunt Deel had had her way. We had hewed and mowed and bored the timbers for our new home. The neighbors came with axes and helped to raise and stay and cover them. A great amount of human kindness went into the beams and rafters of that home and of my Uncle Peabody was nothing more or less than a kind of conversational weed. I can not think that any one really believed it.

We had a cheerful day. A barrel of beer had been set up in the dooryard, and I remember that some drunk it too freely. The he-o-hee of the men as they lifted the planks and the sound of the hammer and beetle rang in the air from morning until night. Mrs. Rodney Barnes and Mrs. Dorothy came to help Aunt Deel with the cooking and a great dinner was served on an improvised table in the dooryard where the stove was set up. The shingles and sheathes and clapboards were on before the day ended.

When they were about to go the men filled their cups and drank to Aunt Deel.

I know, or thought I knew, why they had not mentioned my Uncle Peabody, and was very thoughtful about it. Suddenly the giant Rodney Barnes strode up to the barrel. I remember the lion-like dignity of his face as he turned and said to me: "Now, boys, come up here and stand right before me, every one of you."

He ranged them in a circle around the barrel and stood at the spigot and filled every cup. Then he raised his own hand and said: "I want you to drink to Peabody Barnes—one of the dearest men that ever stood in cowhide."

They drank the toast—not one of them would have dared refuse.

"Now three cheers for the new home and every one that lives in it," he demanded.

They cheered lustily and went away.

Uncle Peabody and I put in the floors and stairs and partitions. More than once in the days we were working together I tried to tell him what Sally had told me, but my courage failed.

I moved our furniture. I remember that Uncle Peabody called it "the houstree." We had grafted paper on the windows for a time after we moved until the snow came. Aunt Deel made rag carpets for the parlor and the bedroom which opened off it. Our windows looked down into the great valley of the St. Lawrence, stretching northward thirty miles or more from our hilltop. A beautiful grove of sugar maples stood within a stone's throw of the back door.

What a rustic charm in the long want of to green and brown and with its grassy, boulders and lovely thin trees! It was, I think, a brighter, pleasanter home than that we had left. It was built on the cellar of one buried few years before. The old born was still there and a little repairing had made it do.

The day came, shortly, when I had to speak out, and I took the straight way of my duty as the need of the hour pointed. It was the end of a summer day and we had watched the dusk fill the valley and came creeping up the slant, sinking the boulders and thorn tops in its flood, one by one. As we sat looking out the open door that evening I told them what Sally had told me of the evil report which had traveled through the town. I told them that Peabody sat silent and perfectly motionless for a moment, looking out into the dusk.

"W'y, of all things! Ain't that an awful shame—said Aunt Deel as she covered her face with her hand.

"Daan, little souled, narrer contracted—Uncle Peabody, speaking in a low, sad tone, but with deep feeling, out of this highly promising opinion before it was half expressed, and rose and went to the water pail and drank.

"As we're honest we don't care what they say," he remarked as he returned to his chair.

"If they don't believe us we ought to show 'em the papers—ays," said Aunt Deel.

"Thunder an' Jehu! I wouldn't go 'round the town tryin' to prove that I ain't a thief," said Uncle Peabody. "It wouldn't make no difference. They've got to have something to play with. If they want to use my name to be a bean bag let 'em as long as they

NERVOUSNESS ON THE DECLINE

Doctors Encouraged, They Hold Out Hope for All.

"Nothing wrong but my nerves." We hear it at home, at work and everywhere. Certainly, nervousness is a disease. A man or woman might better have a broken leg than a shattered, run down nervous system.

Overwork and worry drains the nerve cells and centers of all their strength and vitality, then you get your sleepless nights, poor blood, nervous system. The better doctors of today know just what to do in cases of this kind. They know that a few weeks' use of Phosphated Iron rarely fails to strengthen, stimulate and feed the Phosphate-hungry nerve centers.

Phosphated Iron certainly does take hold. The way the majority of patients come back is remarkable. You can almost see their nerves grow steady, strong and peaceful.

What a change in appearance, too. The cheeks become filled out and flushed with the healthy ruddy glow that only pure, rich, ironized blood can give. Eyes sparkle, their step has the spring and swing of youth and their whole system seems to be alive with energy and good spirits.

Mr. Nervous Man or Woman, Phosphated Iron will do all this for you if you will give it a chance. Do not drag around, all in and half dead another day when help is so near. Get busy! and be a live one once again.

To insure doctors and their patients getting the genuine Phosphated Iron we have put in capsules only, so do not allow dealers to give you pills or tablets. Insist on capsules. Smith Drug Co., and leading Druggists everywhere. Advertisement.

do it when I ain't lookin'. I wonder if they got sore hands by an' by."

I never heard him speak of it again. Indeed, although I knew the topic was often in our thoughts but never mentioned in our home but once after that, to my knowledge.

We sat for a long time thinking as the night came on. By any by Uncle Peabody began the hymn in which we joined:

"Oh, keep my heart from sadness, God; Let not all sorrows stay, Nor shadows of the night erase The glories of the day."

"Say—by thunder!—we don't have to set in the shadows. Let's fill the room with the glory of the day," said Uncle Peabody as he lighted the candles. "It ain't a good idea to go slittin' down hill in the summer-time an' in the dark, too. Let's have a game of cards."

I remember that we had three merry games and went to bed. All outward signs of our trouble had vanished in the glow of the candles.

Next day I rode to the post-office and found there a book addressed to me in the handwriting of old Kake. It was David Hoffman's "Course of Legal Study." She had written on its fly-leaf:

"To Barton Barnes, from a friend."

"That woman," I said to myself, "is a thorough!" said Uncle Peabody.

"Well, let her if she wants to—poor thing!" Aunt Deel answered. "A woman has got to have somebody to live with. I declare I don't—ays!"

"I like her, too," I said. "She's been a good friend to me."

"We began reading the book that evening in the candle-light and soon finished it. I was thrilled by the ideal of human service with which the book was written, and which I had not doubt of my duty.

That week a letter came to me from the Senator, announcing the day of his return to the law office in Canton and asking me to meet her and assist her in getting the house to rights. I did so. She was a pleasant-faced, amiable woman and a most enterprising house cleaner. I remember that my first task was mending the wheelbarrow.

"I don't know what Shas would do if he were to get home and find his wheelbarrow broken," said she. "It is almost an inseparable companion of his."

The schoolmaster and his family were fishing and camping up the river, and so I lived at the Senator's house with Mrs. Wright and her mother until he arrived. What a wonderful house it was, in my view, washed by its size and splendor, its scarred carpets and shiny brass and mahogany. Yet it was very simple. I hoed the garden and cleaned its paths and mowed the dooryard and did some painting in the house. I remember that Mrs. Ebenezer Blinks—wife of the deacon and the constable—came in while I was at the latter task early one morning to see if there were anything she could do.

She immediately sat down and talked constantly until noon of her family and especially of the heartlessness and general misconduct of her son and daughter-in-law because they had refused to let her apply the name of Divine Submission to the baby. It had been a hard blow to Mrs. Blinks, because this was the one and only favor which she had ever asked of them. She reviewed the history of the Blinkses from the present day. There had been three Divine Submissions in the family and they had made the name of Blinks known wherever people knew anything. When Mrs. Wright left the room Mrs. Blinks directed her conversation at me, and when Mrs. Wright returned I only got the spray of it. By dinner time we were drenched in a way of speaking and Mrs. Blinks left, assuring us that she would return later and do anything in her power.

"My stars!" Mrs. Wright exclaimed. "If you see her coming lock the door and go hide in a closet until she goes away. Mrs. Blinks always brings her ancestors with her and they fill the house so that there's no room for anybody else."

When the day's work was ended Mrs. Wright exclaimed: "Thank goodness the Blinkses have not returned."

We always referred to Mrs. Blinks as the Blinkses after that.

Mrs. Jensen, a friend of the Blinkses, came in the afternoon and told us of the visit of young Latour to Canton and of the great relief of the decent people at his speedy departure.

"I wonder what brought him here," said Mrs. Wright.

"It seems that he had heard of the death of Sally Dunkelberg. But a head had stung her nose just before he came and she was a sight to behold."

The ladies laughed.

"It's lucky," said Mrs. Wright. "Doesn't Horace Dunkelberg know about him?"

"Of suppose he does, but the man is money crazy."

I couldn't help hearing it, for I was working in the room in which they talked. Well, really, it is better matter much now. They are all gone.

"Who is young Latour?" I asked when Mrs. Jensen had left us.

"A rake and a dissolute young man whose father is very rich and lives in a great mansion over in Jefferson County," Mrs. Wright answered.

I wondered then if there had been a purpose in that drop of money from the cup of the Silent Woman.

I remember that the Senator, who returned to Canton that evening on the Watertown stage, laughed heartily when we were sitting by the fire.

"Mrs. Wright told of the call of the Blinkses."

"The good lady enjoys a singular plurality," he remarked.

"She enjoys it better than we do," said Mrs. Wright.

The Senator had greeted me with a fatherly warmth. Again I felt that strong appeal to me in his broadcloth and fine linen and beaver hat and in the splendid dignity and courtesy of his manners.

"I've got good reports of you, Bart."

and I'm very glad to see you," he said. "I believe your own marks have been excellent in the last year," I ventured.

"Better than I could wish. The teacher has been very kind to me," he laughed. "What have you been studying?"

Latin (I always mentioned the Latin first), Algebra, Arithmetic, Grammar, Geography and History.

"Including the history of the Blinkses," he laughed.

There was never a note of humor in his speech, but he was playful in his talk at times, especially when trusted friends were with him.

"She is a very excellent woman, after all," he added to my aunt and uncle and I told him of all that had befallen us, save the one thing of which I had spoken only with them and Sally.

"I shall go up to see them soon," he said.

The people of the little village had learned that he preferred to be let alone when he had just returned over the long, wearisome way from the scene of his labors. So we had the evening to ourselves.

"With no mishap the keen interest in his account of riding from Albany to Utica on the new railroad. He spoke with enthusiasm of the smoothness and swiftness of the journey."

"I shall go up to see them now make it in about a half a day," he said, as we listened with wonder. "It is like riding in a house with a good deal of smoke coming out of the chimney and in at the windows. You sit on a comfortable bench with aback and a foot-rest in front and look out of the window and ride. But I tremble sometimes to think what might happen with all that weight and speed."

"We had a little mishap after leaving Ballston Spa. The locomotive engine broke down and the train stopped. The passengers poured out like bees. We put our hands and shoulders on the train and pushed it backwards about a third of a mile to a passing station. There the engine got out of our way and after an hour's wait a horse was hitched to the train. With the help of the men it started it. At the next town our horse was reinforced by two others. They hauled to the engine station four miles beyond, where another locomotive engine was attached to the train, and we went on by steam and at a fearful rate of speed."

Mrs. Wright, being weary after the day's work, went to bed early and, as she requested, I sat with the Senator by the fire for an hour or so. I have always thought it a lucky circumstance, for he asked me to tell of my plans and gave me advice and encouragement which had a marked effect upon my career.

Dinner Stories

He walked, timidly into the dry goods store and bashfully inquired of the floorwalker: "Have you any rubber for a present for a young lady?"

"Certainly," was the reply; "perhaps you would like to look at some of those silk sport coats?"

The young man nodded, but when the assistant brought the coats to the size he was hopelessly baffled. He gazed about him helplessly for a minute or so, then, suddenly spotting a dummy figure, a smile stole over his face. Walking up to it he encircled it with his arm.

"Yes, about this size will do, I think," he said, happily.

A young man who thought she was losing her husband's affections went to a seventh daughter of a seventh daughter for a love powder. The mystery woman told her:

"Get a raw piece of beef, cut flat and rub the meat on both sides of it. Put on pepper and salt, and toast it on each side, over a red coal fire. Drop on it three drops of butter and two sprigs of parsley and get him to eat it."

The young wife did so, and her husband loved her ever after.

(But that was before Hoover got on the job.)

A Bobby (to grandmother)—Grandma, have you ever seen an engine wagging its ears?

Grandma—No, nonsense. Bobby I never heard of an engine having ears.

Bobby—Why, haven't you ever heard of engineers?

Will Increase Rates.

Madison.—Water rates in the city of Madison will be increased under a decision of the railroad commission. Some time ago the city made application for an increase of rates and the decision will increase the rates of small consumers about twenty-five per cent. The amount which must be paid by the city for fire protection has

Is a Merry Widow

"Soon after my husband's death 3 years ago, I was taken with typhoid fever. Since then have suffered from stomach and liver trouble and constipation. I have doctored a great deal without benefit. Since taking May's Wonderful Remedy three months ago my bowels have moved regularly. I am feeling well again. I am now a happy woman." It is a simple, but a less preparation that removes catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convulse or money refunded. J. P. Baker and druggists everywhere.

TOO WEAK TO FIGHT

The "come-back" man was really never down-and-out. His weakened condition because of overwork, lack of exercise, improper eating and living demands stimulation to satisfy the body for a health-giving appetite and the refreshing sleep essential to strength. GOLD MEDAL, HANSON'S CAPSULES, the National Remedy of Holland, will do the work. They are wonderful. Three of these capsules a day will put a man on his feet before he knows it. Whether his trouble comes from uric acid poisoning, in kidneys, gravel or stone, in the bladder, stomach, derangement of other organs, that befell the over-taxed American. Don't wait until you are entirely down-and-out. But take them today. Your druggist will gladly refund your money if they do not help you. Accept no substitutes. Look for the name GOLD MEDAL, on every box, three sizes. They are the pure, original, imported Haarmann Oil Capsules.

Manufacturers: Can you meet the War Test?

Have you a Product that can replace any of the articles the American Public has given up for war winning?

If you have, you will never find a better time than the present to establish it solidly as a necessity in American life. Despite the obstacles of transportation, fuel, labor, etc., there is a wide field and an open reception awaiting products that really have merit.

New rational products, judiciously advertised today, will establish themselves solidly within a space of time impossible under ordinary conditions.

This agency, this newspaper—advertising men generally—are ready to help you. Our experience, our appreciation of to-day's quick-changing conditions, our ability to make the most of every medium at hand, will play an important role in creating your market.

Your plant, your machinery, your available raw materials may possess potentialities of national value and service. If you will develop a product of utility, you will do the Nation a real service. Perhaps we can help you. A conference certainly may disclose interesting facts.

LETTER DESCRIBES
TRENCH ATTACKSCarl Jordan Tells of Being in Drive—
Arthur Christian Writes of Returning to Lines.

Two former Company boys have written interesting letters from the front which have just been received here. Carl Jordan describes an attack on the German trenches in which he took part, and tells how he "got" eighteen Hunns with grenades and rifles. Arthur Christian writes that he has just returned to the lines again from the hospital. He was one of several Janesville boys wounded in the drive of May 23. The two letters read as follows:

June 4, 1918.

Dear Club Mate:
Well, Art, I thought I would drop you a few short lines while I am waiting for the movies at the Y. M. C. A. I say I would like to tell you what happened to me the other day. You know you asked me a lot of questions and I will try and answer them. First let me tell you I have seen all these things you spoke of, the Allies and the Germans in action. The top we were supported by tanks and had to fight German tanks. We had Stokes mortars to pave the way for us, and it is a lot of fun to see our barrage. We had liquid fire and everything and made it hot for the Germans. Yes, I have been in the trenches twice and have had my share at the Hunns. I have got one of everyone of the old bunch back home and a couple more for reserve. I got eighteen on my last trip up to the front. Got them in a dugout with grenades and my rifle. I have got eighteen notches in my gun and expect to get more yet. I got a touch of mustard gas and some blisters on the back of my legs. Also got some in my lungs but not much; just enough to make them sore and make me cough and lose my voice just as I had a head cold. Well, it is a little time for the show to start, so I will say good luck.

Carl Jordan, Co. D, 28 Inf.
St. Aignan, France,
June 4, 1918

Mother:
I thought I would drop you a few lines to let you know that I am well and hope you and father are the same. I am back here at this camp from the hospital. I suppose you will try to see the movies of the drive I was in. There is no use of the Germans trying to bluff me. The weather here is awfully hot and dry these days. The fruit here is ripe now, and they have a big crop of strawberries and cherries. If I was a bird I would get away here. Everything I buy here is pretty high. I haven't much to say this time so will close.

Your son,
Arthur Christian,
Co. E, 25th Infantry.

ALLIED AIRMEN DRIVE HUN CIVILIANS INTO WILD PANIC;
DROP TONS OF BOMBS INTO MANNHEIM AND COLOGNE

Huge British airplane making ready for a raid on the enemy's country, and French soldiers preparing aerial torpedoes for a raid.

The Germans who so gaily started the practice of making air raids on enemy cities far behind the lines now bitterly regret they ever invented this method of warfare. For the allies are beating them at their own game. Most allied air bombers select the cities of Cologne and Mannheim for their targets, and these towns are being slowly laid in ruins. The people of Cologne and Mannheim have petitioned the Berlin government to enter if possible into an agreement with the allies to discontinue on both sides the practice of bombarding enemy towns from the air. The Kaiser knows such an agreement will never be made.

PRIMITIVE WAYS IN ARABIA

Mode of Life Differs Little From What It Was in the Time of Abraham.

It appears that in certain parts of the Arabian desert life is as primitive as in Abraham's time. Sheep are still slain to seal a vow. The salt or bread covenant is observed and when a man dies his tent is torn down and destroyed.

Old names like Joseph, Moses, Alexander, etc., are still in common use among Arabs, although pronounced "Yusuf," "Musa," and "Skandar." To divorce his wife a man may repeat the formula "Ent telek" three times; usually uttering it once makes the woman behave and the repetition is not necessary. The evil eye superstition is common, and the first injunction given a foreigner by experienced Arabian travelers is that he must not point at animals or persons in Arab settlements.

Arabs say that a man possessed of this malign power can look at a bird flying in the air and it will drop dead; that if he chooses to cast his wicked spell on a camel it may go lame, or a child may be struck blind.

Of the lower class can read or write, but the Arabs noted for his ready wit and his habit of speaking in allegory.

Find Out First.
Study to conserve your steps. When you spend an hour looking for something because you do not know where it is, you have wasted that many steps.

KING CORN TAKING
WALLOP AT KAISER

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Lincoln, Neb., July 2.—If the Kaiser could be induced to take a daylight airplane ride over the great farming section of the central plains, including most of Nebraska and Kansas, today, he would start a peace offensive by wireless at once.

Food for the world is growing and ripening on millions of acres, giving plenty for America and her associates in the war. Wheat harvest is on under most favorable conditions throughout much of this section, and corn, which has had a fine growing season, is being "laid by" in Central Kansas and is developing rapidly in Nebraska.

The widespread scare about seed-corn last winter and spring was a wholesome thing for the crop now developing. So general was the testing of seed before planting, on account of warnings sent out by state agricultural colleges that much seed corn had been killed during the winter, that practically all corn planted germinated well, and a good stand was general.

Heavy rains and plenty of sunshine have contributed much to development of what promises to be a Kaiser-killing food crop.

Food administration propaganda has made corn one of the important human food crops. Once looked upon as hog feed, corn now is eaten in many forms by almost every American. It is the staple of the diet, and staple articles of food during the next year. Corn flour is largely used among the wheat substitutes now, and

WHAT YOU NEED WHERE TO GO JULY 4TH

Hurrah for the Fourth of July Buy a Sonora

Phonograph for the Fourth. What is the use of waiting any longer, come right in tomorrow and make a selection and it will be sent to your home without delay.

Remember that the Sonora is the right machine for you to buy, on account of the beautiful quality of tone. A tone as brilliant as the sparkle of gems and as sweet as the old love song—as clear as the Sabbath church bells' chimes and as true as the ring of a gong—this is Sonora's tone which was awarded the highest score at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition.
